The University of Oregon's Jordan Schnitzer Museum of Art (JSMA) features engaging exhibitions, significant collections of historic and contemporary art, and exciting educational programs that support the university's academic mission and the diverse interests of its off-campus communities. The JSMA continues a long tradition of bridging international cultures and offers a welcoming destination for discovery and education centered on artistic expression that deepens the appreciation and understanding of the human condition.

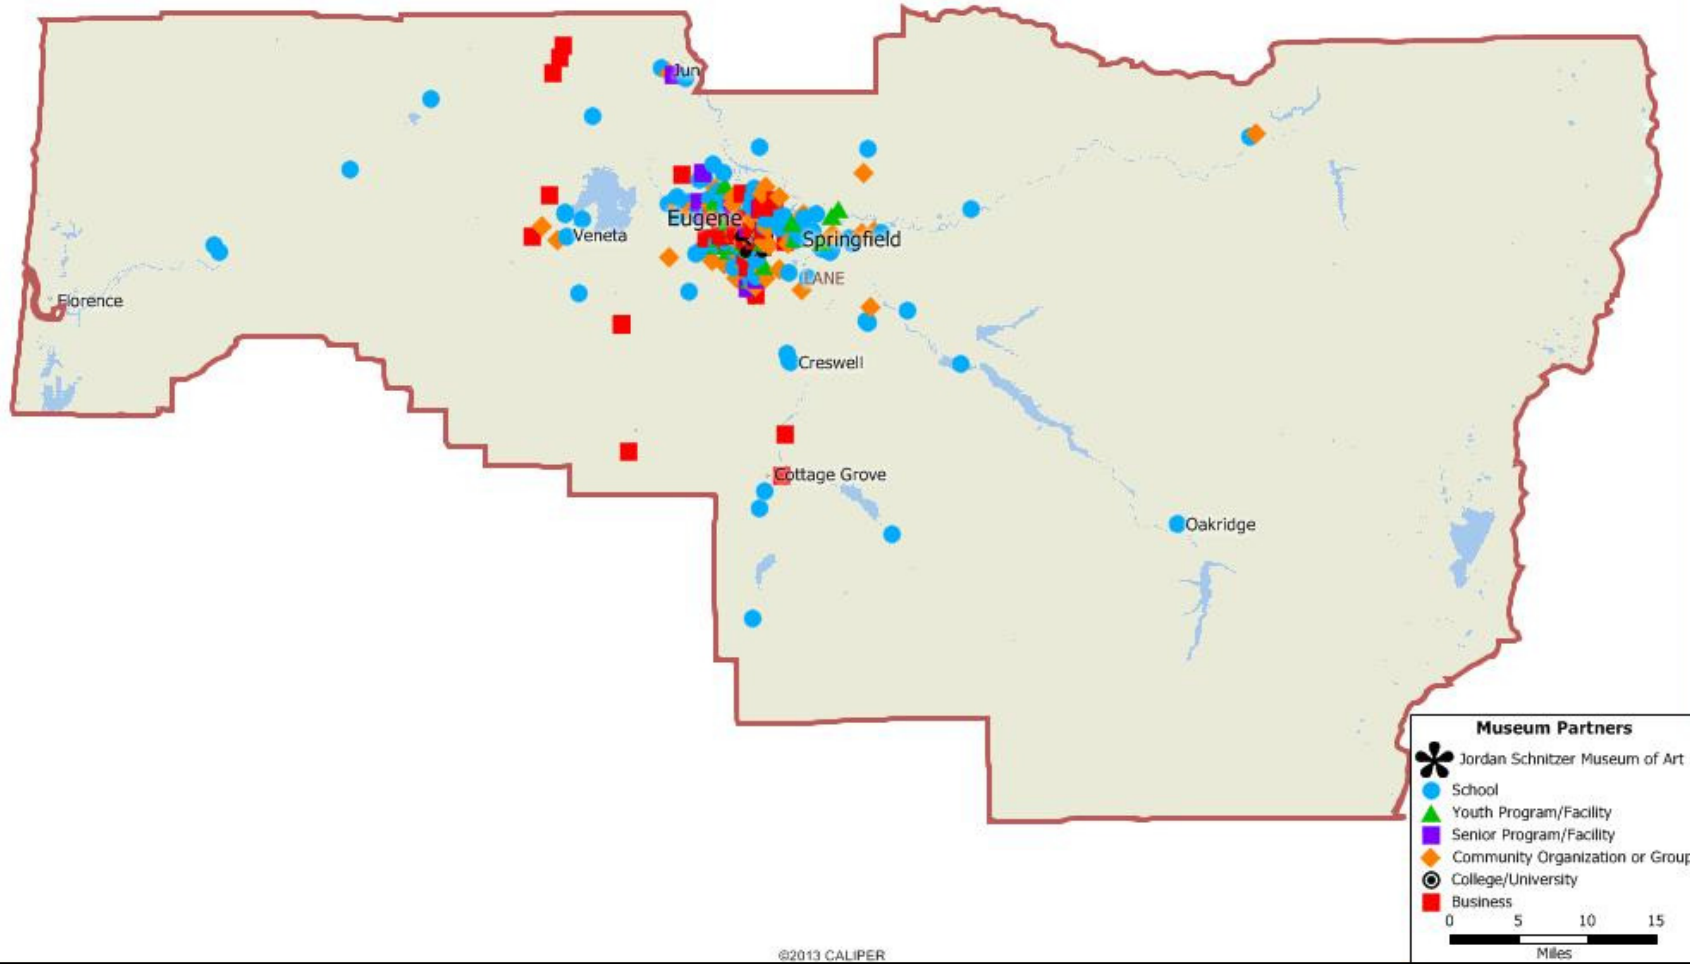

Each symbol on the map represents a community organization that JSMA served in the past year.

The JSMA works with over 400 schools, youth programs such as Head Start, cultural institutions, houses of worship, facilities for seniors, and businesses in the Eugene area and across western Oregon. As the map below shows, the museum works with organizations in census tracts that span the economic spectrum. Admission to the museum is free to K-12 and university students, and financial assistance is available for those wishing to participate in programs.

The JSMA offers an active program for youth and families. Programs include art classes for preschool, elementary, middle and high school students during the school year, art camps during school breaks and Family Days, which feature art projects inspired by museum exhibitions, music and theatrical performances, and family-friendly tours. JSMA's Education and Outreach Programs are supported by the Cheryl and Allyn Ford Educational Outreach Endowment Fund, Oregon Arts Commission, UO Center for Asian and Pacific Studies, and the US Dept. of Education's Title VI fund, Holly GoSlugly's GoArt Education Fund, and generous support from our members

Lane County community organizations and programs served by JSMA. Please see next page for the list of more than 130 public, private, parochial and home schools served by the museum.
